DOUBT ABOUT HAWAII,

Thinks It Unlikely That the Annexation, Resolution Will Be Acted on During This Session of Congress.

When a man makes money on a square basis no man envies him, but when a man makes his fortune by the operation of a trust it has always been denounced by all peoples. A combination of capital seems on the face of it fair enough, but it breaks down compe-tition and destroys small establishments. I favor making un'awful all combinations and restraint of trade in the most direct manner possible. Trusts put a few men in control of industries, in which many should compete.-John Sherman, Secretary of State, to the Journal in an interview.

The Republican Secretary of State arrived in this city from Washington at 10 clock last evening. He registered at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

"I am here," said Mr. Sherman to a Journal reporter, "to attend a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railroad, I have no business to transact except this, and shall return to Washington as soon as it is

In the course of a conversation in regard to the popular condemnation of trusts and monopolies, Secretary Sheriñan said:

Trusts are altogether the most important question of the day. It is claimed by those who form them that the effect of their operation is to lower prices, but I don't think so. In my opinion trusts should be rigorously restrained. The present tendency of business is toward combination, to control prices and output. The Western Union Company is a case in point. It virtually controls all of one kind of business. In like manner com binations are made in all kinds of indus-

Trusts are wrong in principle, even though they may lower prices, for they prevent healtful competition. People have en inalienable right to compete on a just basis in every line of industry.

Laws Must Be Changed. The restraint of trusts will become effective when we can get the proper kind of a law. Against tremendous opposition the Supreme Court of the United States upheld the present anti-trust law, but pointed out defects in it. The law is not strong enough. I wrote the present law, but the Judiciary Committee, for which it was re ferred in the Senate, made changes in it.
